The Sale of Muslin Underwear and Corsets
In Our Little French Room.

The business in these goods yesterday established a new record—and if it continues with the same energy the success can be naught but unprecedented. The eagerness with which the scores of women purchased the undermuslins proves that they have been waiting for just this event—and also reiterates the fact that our values are more than ordinarily great.

At 85c., $1.25, $1.45 and $1.85 will be found many tempting lots. Of special interest in the Corset line is an offering of that high-grade French Classique make at $5.50.

Long Coats and Ulsters
At Very Special Prices.

Among the many interesting sales now being held in our department of Women's Ready-to-wear this should take precedence, as the values are unusually great. Another reason why this should be so is on account of the great demand for and popularity of Long Coats and Ulsters. The prices here are cut not lightly, but deeply, to effect a quick clearance.

Among the Furs offered at a great reduction—will be found a few fine

The Carroll Institute and 6th Battalion basketball teams will play a league game tonight at the former's gymnasium, beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

CARROLLS' VICTORY

Institute Bowlers Won Three Games From Saengerbunds.

NEWS OF THE BASE BALL WORLD

Increase of Entries in This Year's Coney Island Club's Suburban.

SPORTS IN GENERAL

There was a league bowling contest at the alleys of the Washington Saengerbund last night in which the participants were Carroll Institute and the home team. The Carroll Institute won each of the three games. This was practically a 20-to-1 shot, the saying of which is no disparagement to the institute men, for the mighty Saengers have had no difficulty in proving their strength in their earlier contests. So that for any league team to come to their alleys with expectations of a three-time victory was out of the question. The victory was therefore as surprising to the Carrollists as it was unexpected by their opponents.

But a perusal of the scores shows that while the Carrollists bowled magnificently throughout the match, leaving far beyond the 800 score in each game, the Saengers were decidedly out of form, and after the first game played quite poorly. The Carrollists brought along a big aggregation of rosters, who took their places at the side of the Saengers, while the latter cohorts were lined up behind the players. Needless to say, most of the cheering came from the side. The gathering was one of the largest of the year.

Much good individual work was done by the Carrollists. Rice's steady arm bringing him the fine string of 225 in the opening game, and Gorman, who got into hot form and scored a first-class average. Brosnan did not hold up his end as well as was expected, but he has had trouble with the Saenger alleys before.

Except for Scheuerman's scores, all of the home team played below their usual standard, the loss of the initial game apparently disheartening them. The opening game was a royal struggle, in which each side stood an equal chance, for several frames. At the end of the first frame, the Carrollists were ahead, but about even, though after a few frames the home team had slightly the better of it. But Rice's steady run soon placed his team in the lead, which he coupled to a bowling by the Saengers in the seventh frame, gave the Carrollists an advantage which was maintained to the end. The score follows:

The second game was easily the Saengers' property up to the opening of the second frame. At that point the Carrollists were seventy pins behind, but there came a decided falling off in the Saengers' bowling, and they repeatedly missed the strike and spared which their adversaries were making. The close saw the Carrollists overcome their opponents' lead and finally win out by forty pins.

LOCAL OUTLOOK BRIGHT.

Manager Loftus Will Reap the Benefit of Manning's Hard Work.

A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune in this city writes as follows on the Washington base ball situation:

From a Washington standpoint the fight in the National has immeasurably strengthened the American League. In spite of all the harsh treatment received there remained here a prejudice in certain classes for the old league. The bursting of the smoking National League embers into flames of open rupture, however, has in a way reflected the real strength of the younger league, and has swept away the last ties of sentiment for the boss-ridden National. The coming season locally promises to be even more successful than the first.

All the talk about the Washington club having lost big money last year is twaddle. The club's financial showing under the circumstances was really remarkable. Notwithstanding the cost of fitting up a new ball park and the hundred and one items of expense, the club's net income for the year was $100,000. This is a fine record for a club which has had to play its home games in the open air, and which has had to contend with the death of President McKinley and the bad slump of the team after a money-raising campaign.

While the holdings of local people in the new club are small compared with those of Messrs. Post and Loftus, the newly elected board of directors in other ways adds strength that few local clubs have so far been favored with. Among the directors are John O'Donnell, Eugene Cochran, G. Hector Clemes, John Hogan, James Dunn, Charles Jacobson, Louis Shoemaker, Wilton J. Lambert and William Hart, who did much to establish the American League here. With these men to second the efforts of the newcomers to give the capital a winning team, Messrs. Post and Loftus are in a fair way to reap from the soil tilled by the sweat of Jimmy Manning's brow.

EVERY MANAGER FOR HIMSELF.

Comiskey Says Loftus Has Deserved Him.

From the Chicago Tribune.
There's Connie Mack. Comiskey said recently that he thought I could use one of his players he would keep him until the Fourth of July and then if I hadn't got the place filled, he would take the player out behind the grand stand and shoot him rather than turn him loose so I could sign him. The rest are getting as bad as Connie, too.

When Loftus came back into the league I thought I would have at least one friend. Now he puts blinders on his players every time I get anywhere near them. Just to show you: Before Loftus went east recently I framed it all up for him to get a good second baseman for his team. I knew McGraw couldn't use all his infielders, so I told Loftus to go after either Keister or Williams. McGraw would talk to Loftus, but to me when it came to players.

Well, Loftus got Keister, you know, and I figured that that would solve my third base problem, for he can't use both Wolverton and Coughlin at third, and neither is much good anywhere else. So when Tom came back I led him up to the subject gently and proposed taking one of the other of them off his hands. Then, six days ago, McGraw would talk to me. He said he thought of playing Keister in the outfield next year, so would need me

A Revolution in Price Making for Our January Clearances.

—The season of the lowest prices of the trade year is on. Pricing of a kind that makes one stop and wonder how and why such goods are offered so ridiculously out of proportion to their worth. The entire winter stock has received its outgoing stimulus. We quote a few items each day. Can't quote all—only hint at all.

MITTENS—Those warm, Black Wool Mittens for the children—full regular made—that means well to do. Reduced from 15c. to 9c.	GEISHA ROBES—Those bright, oriental patterns—in twilled flannel. Usually sell for $2.25. Clearance. $1.48.
MITTENS—The Ladies' Black Mittens—fleece lined. Greatest comfort in the world when shoeing. Reduced from 25c. to 14c.	SQUARES—Large size Wool Squares and Fascinators that are low at 29c. Now 21c.
RIBBONS—The much wanted No. 1 1/2 Linen Back Black Velvet Ribbon, with fast edge. Usually 10 yds. for 25c. Now 12 1/2c.	ROBES—The grade of Black Mercerized Satin Petticoats, made with a corded-plated color are in the open, secured on enough shares to assure absolute control. This explains the complacency with which Spalding and his associates have accepted every move made by the Freedmen.
RIBBONS—All-silk Glace Taffeta Ribbons that make such charming neckties. 4 1/2 wide—in white, black, pink, blue, cardinal, make, violet, mauve, and all the latest colors. Quality by all standards. Clearance price—12 1/2c.	ROBES—Ladies' Rembrandt Hose, full regular made. Hermodor as the English race tracks, and I have no information that he can secure one. To be sure, it would be a great thing for any stable to have such as his rider.
